FOOTBALL

H&A is committed to the ongoing development of the perfect playing surface ensuring the footballer's safety from injury and mimicking the springy, supportive characteristics of natural grass for running, tackles and goal keeping.

With the risks of friction and burns minimised, players may perform without hesitation. Combined player comfort with a financially sound investment strategy provides the best of both worlds.

The football codes of Soccer, Rugby and American Football (Grid Iron) have all recognised artificial turf as having made the necessary technological developments to meet the demands of players, coaches and club officials.

As football has matured into a global game, weather conditions throughout the world can vary to the extreme. The development of artificial turf can now ensure that the game of football is played under the same rules, with the same equipment, including footwear, under the same conditions in any country.
